Human Needs And The Nursing Process

Mary B Walsh Helen Petro-Yura

after renal transplantation. This is often a manipulative process in that it seeks to establish positive links with. An over-emphasis on lower levels of human need is common within nursing.