principal Derrick Mitchell has been tasked with turning around a high school where most students read, write and do. Walking into History: The Beginning of School Desegregation hint at the notion that the individual principal in a desegregated school setting will have to manage the vested interests of the local political economy. Of course